

FOGG HILL CONSERVATION AREA

Welcome to the Fogg Hill Conservation Area. This 235-acre conservation area forms a significant part of a 900+ acre unfragmented woodland and wetland habitat in the Waukewan and Winona Watershed that is the largest roadless area in Center Harbor. This area is important for wildlife as well as a number of species of rare and threatened plants, and it's also critical to the quality of surface and ground waters in the Watershed.

The Fogg Hill property encompasses important natural resources, including the town's only kettle hole bog. In addition, these conserved lands provide wonderful recreational and educational opportunities for all.

The Lakes Region Conservation Trust, as owner of the Fogg Hill Conservation Area, and the Town of Center Harbor, as conservation easement holder, work together in conserving and stewarding this important property for the benefit and enjoyment of the community.
